

Call for submission of scientific articles

PANDEMIC AND MULTIDISCIPLINARITY

Submissions deadline
may.31.2020

We are currently living through a pandemic, whose effects have been as swift as they have been broad, moving far beyond the field of public health. Social scientists from several areas have witnessed the impact of the COVID-19 from different perspectives as the current situation rapidly unfolded.

We firmly believe we can benefit from the insight of all these researchers, through a multidisciplinary approach, in order to understand and help tackle this disease and its effects. The Revista do CEAM, the scientific journal of the Centre for Advanced Multidisciplinary Studies of the University of Brasília, is therefore open for the submission of papers for peer review on this topic.

We are currently accepting works in the fields of social sciences, as well as different areas that keep a dialogue with social sciences through a multidisciplinary approach, focusing on topics related to the novel coronavirus and its impact.

We accept original works in Portuguese, Spanish and Portuguese, in the following formats: research paper, literature review, theoretical studies, methodological studies, and research reports.
